A MORE RELAXING PACE...

Feel like you can't commit to a full course just yet? St Mark's offers selected individual subjects for study through Charles Sturt University, so you can choose to take it real slow. Each successful subject completion in the list below is creditable towards a Bachelor of Theology or a Graduate Diploma of Theology for eligible applicants. The subject can be completed online or on-campus.

Alternatively, you could attend a subject on-campus in Canberra as an auditor, where you will not be required to complete assessment tasks (and will therefore receive no credit towards other awards).

INTERESTED? You can discuss our flexible learning options in detail — just call 02 6272 6252 during office hours.

FLEXIBLE STUDY OPTIONS

AUDITING

Participate with no assessments

If you've always wanted to listen in on quality theological lectures but lack the time to finish assignments, then auditing is a great way to start your theological journey.

As an auditor, you get to participate in weekly lectures and class discussions as well as access St Mark's library resources. (A one-year membership worth $70 is included in the audit fee!) There are no entry requirements, and all lectures and classes are conducted in Canberra.

To enrol, see the back of this flyer for further details or call St Mark's on +612 6272 6252.

SINGLE SUBJECT STUDY

Full participation with credit

Single Subject Study gives you the flexibility and the credit, without the commitment of a full degree.

As a student, you get to access all subject materials and resources and gain access to CSU's Interact2 learning environment - so you can choose campus life, or study online from the comfort of your natural environment.

Best of all, these subjects require no prerequisites, prior knowledge or experience.

To enrol, see the back of this flyer for further details or call CSU on 1800 334 733.

EVENING CLASSES

From 10 July | Wednesdays 5:30pm to 8:00pm

SUBJECT	LECTURER
Introduction to Biblical Languages (THL100)	Rev'd Dr Jeanette Mathews Russell Warnken
This subject introduces students to rudimentary features of Biblical Hebrew and New Testament Greek. It acquaints students with the alphabets of both Hebrew and Greek, familiarises them with basic grammatical features of both languages, and facilitates the learning of elementary vocabulary. You will get to learn the range of grammatical and lexical tools available to support the use of scholarly resources based on Biblical Hebrew and New Testament Greek. It also raises your awareness of interpretive implications arising from cultural dimensions of biblical texts preserved in ancient languages.

DAYTIME CLASSES

We offer other subjects for auditing and single subject study Tuesdays to Thursdays. Our morning classes run from 9:00am to 12:30pm, and our afternoon classes run from 2:00pm to 5:00pm. These are available on-campus in Canberra, subject to conditions.

- THL120: Practical Theology (Tuesday mornings)
A great introduction to the discipline of practical theology, where theory and practice are considered together across a range of areas of ministry, mission, worship, and pastoral care.
- THL106: Introduction to New Testament Studies (Wednesday mornings)
Examine the various writings that make up the New Testament, looking at their historical context and some of their literary and theological distinctives. You will learn some key features of New Testament interpretation and be introduced to some central interpretive issues, including the relations between the gospels, the historical value of Acts, the authorship of letters attributed to Paul, and guidelines for interpreting the book of Revelation responsibly.
- THL113: Being the Church (Thursday mornings)
This subject studies the origins of the Christian church and biblical models for being the people of God. It examines the theological basis for the life, mission and ministry of the church, and ways in which the church sustains its mission in the 21st century.
- THL132: European Reformations, 1400–1700 (Thursday afternoons)
This is one of the most fascinating and influential periods in world history, a time of immense religious, cultural, and political ferment with far-reaching implications for Christianity, world politics, literature, philosophy, economics, science, and the arts. Find out how the Reformation, including key figures such as Martin Luther and John Calvin, laid the foundations of the modern world.

For more information about these subjects, visit our website. To enrol, you can refer to the back of this flyer for further details.
